DOCUMENT DUTY AND ANTI-AVOIDANCE DUTY

The States are asked to decide:

Whether, after consideration of the Policy Letter entitled 'Document Duty and Anti-Avoidance Duty' of the Policy & Resources Committee, they are of the opinion:

1. To approve the proposals to introduce a document duty (anti-avoidance) duty regime in accordance with Section 3 of the Policy Letter;
2. To approve the Projet de Loi entitled "The Document Duty (Anti-Avoidance) (Guernsey) Law, 2017", and to authorise the Bailiff to present a most humble petition to Her Majesty praying for Royal Sanction thereto;
3. To approve the proposals to repeal the Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 1973 and the Document Duty (Guernsey) Ordinance, 2003 and to substitute a revised document duty regime in accordance with Section 4 of the Policy Letter;
4. To approve the Projet de Loi entitled "The Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 2017", and to authorise the Bailiff to present a most humble petition to Her Majesty praying for Royal Sanction thereto; and
5. To direct the preparation of such other legislation as may be necessary to give effect to the above decisions.

The above Propositions have been submitted to Her Majesty's Procureur for advice on any legal or constitutional implications in accordance with Rule 4 (1) of the Rules of Procedure of the States of Deliberation and their Committees.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

The Document Duty (Anti-Avoidance) (Guernsey) Law, 2017 introduces a regime, parallel to the existing document duty regime (to be amended in accordance with the Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 2017 - see below), imposing a duty on transactions which have an effect comparable to the transfer of an interest in real property but which do not involve a conveyance or other registrable document and so do not attract document duty. The Projet sets a general principle that the duty will be chargeable on all transactions for value which have the effect of conferring on a person a "significant benefit" in real property i.e. the right to enjoy the benefits of ownership without actually owning the property. The Projet carves out exceptions to that general principle and also makes provision for exemptions in defined circumstances. Duty will be payable at a rate set by Ordinance (comparable to the rate set for document duty), based on the market value of the interest transferred. The Projet imposes a duty of self-assessment jointly and severally on the transferor and transferee. HM Greffier will administer the scheme but the Director of Income Tax, who will be responsible for enforcement, will have powers to make formal assessments and to impose penalties in cases where the requirements have not been fulfilled. Provision is made for appeals to the Royal Court and for offences.

The Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 2017 repeals and replaces the Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 2003 to introduce a revised regime for the imposition of document duty on registered documents. The purpose of the revision is to remedy certain deficiencies in the present legislation, including lack of a formal appeals procedure and anti-avoidance provisions, and to achieve greater clarity and simplicity. The Projet sets out the general principle, subject to exemptions in defined circumstances, that duty will be charged on all documents relating to transactions which transfer an interest in Guernsey real property or create a charge against such real property. Duty on transfers of property is payable on the consideration paid, where the transaction is at arm's length; otherwise, duty is calculated on the basis of the market value of the realty transferred. The rates of duty, which will reflect the current rates, will be prescribed by Ordinance and will be similar to the rates under the Document Duty (Anti-Avoidance) (Guernsey) Law, 2017. The scheme will be administered as at present by HM Greffier. The Projet introduces appeals provisions and anti-avoidance provisions, and creates offences of making false or misleading statements.

DOCUMENT DUTY AND ANTI-AVOIDANCE DUTY

The Presiding Officer
States of Guernsey
Royal Court House
St Peter Port

30th March, 2017

Dear Sir

1 Executive Summary

- 1.1 As part of the 2012 Budget Report (Billet d'État XXII, 2011), the States approved the principle of the introduction of a “regime in Guernsey which taxes sales of interests in entities which own either commercial or domestic real property in Guernsey at the same rate as applied under the Document Duty Law for standard conveyances.”
- 1.2 This Policy Letter is recommending the introduction of a regime, parallel to the existing document duty regime, which will impose a duty on transactions which have an effect comparable to the transfer of an interest in real property but which do not involve a conveyance or other registrable document and so do not attract document duty.
- 1.3 The reasons for the introduction of the new regime are two-fold; firstly to ensure a consistent, fair and equitable approach to all property transactions and secondly, to raise additional revenue for the States. It is not possible to estimate the level of additional income that these proposals could generate as little information is available on the number and value of properties held by legal entities or how often they are transferred. However, it is likely that the introduction of this new duty will at the very least be a deterrent to the use of companies for the purpose of ownership of real property where the purpose is the avoidance of document duty and thereby result in an increase in revenue from document duty when ownership of such property changes.

- 1.4 In addition, it is recommended that the existing Document Duty Law is revised in order to clarify and modernise it, ensure that it is human-rights compliant with the introduction of an appeals procedure, and introduce anti-avoidance provisions to discourage the use of artificial transactions designed to avoid document duty. In practice, it is not anticipated that there will be any noticeable impact on purchasers or vendors of real property as a result of these revisions and no change to the amount of duty charged.
- 1.5 These proposals will apply to conveyances of Guernsey property only; the current duty regime in Alderney (which, as well as document duty which currently is paid to the States of Guernsey, also includes congé, leasehold duty and transfer duty which is paid to the States of Alderney) will continue to operate as at present. As set out in the 2017 Budget Report, it is intended that, as part of the revision of the financial arrangements between Guernsey and Alderney, with effect from 2018, the document duty on conveyances of Alderney property will be paid to the States of Alderney.

2 Background

- 2.1 Under the present document duty regime, where Guernsey real property is transferred by way of conveyance, the document is registered at the Greffe and the transfer of ownership (and the payment) is clearly ascertainable for the purposes of assessing document duty. However, for example, where a property is owned by a company limited by shares, effective ownership of that property can be transferred to a third party by a sale of the shares in the company to a new beneficial owner, rather than by conveyance. In those circumstances, the share transfer agreement does not need to be registered, the transfer is not in the public domain and no document duty is payable, whatever the value of the property owned by the company or the price paid for it.
- 2.2 Other entities such as foundations, companies limited by guarantee, trusts and partnerships might enter into arrangements which enable individuals to acquire the right to enjoy or benefit from Guernsey real property without acquiring direct legal ownership by virtue of a conveyance. In all such cases, no duty would be payable.

3 Proposed Document Duty (Anti-Avoidance) (Guernsey) Law

- 3.1 The purpose of the proposed legislation is to ensure that transactions other than conveyances which have the effect of conferring enjoyment of Guernsey real property in a form similar to ownership are treated, for the purposes of liability to duty, in the same way, as far as possible, as conveyances registered at the Greffe. This would mean that duty, whether document duty or anti-avoidance duty, would be payable on all transfers of real property, whether directly by way of conveyance, or indirectly by virtue of some other transaction falling within the proposed legislation, at the same rate.
- 3.2 Rather than attempt to recite an exhaustive list of transactions to which the anti-avoidance duty will apply, which would be impossible and would tend to encourage the creation of schemes for its avoidance, it is proposed that the legislation will set out the general principles to be applied, and create exceptions in defined circumstances. The general principle will be that the proposed duty is chargeable on all transactions (called "relevant transactions") which do not fall within the scope of the Document Duty (Guernsey) Law (see Section 4), but which
- (a) have the effect of conferring on the transferee a "significant benefit" in respect of any real property,
 - (b) are made in return for payment, whether for money or money's worth (some other form of payment), and
 - (c) are not specifically exempted by the legislation.
- 3.3 A person will be regarded as having received a "significant benefit" if, as a result of the transaction, he enjoys the benefits of ownership of real property - for example, he has the right to occupy the property or control its occupation; the right to receive rents or other income arising from the property; or generally the right to enjoy, or control the enjoyment of, the property.
- 3.4 It is proposed that certain transactions will expressly not be treated as conferring a significant benefit and so will not be liable to duty. However, the legislation will give the States flexibility by Ordinance to remove excluded transactions from this list, or to add others. The initial list will include:
- (a) rights conferred by way of inheritance (e.g. the acquisition of real property in accordance with the laws of intestacy),

- (b) transfers effected by court order such as vesting orders made in matrimonial proceedings, administration orders made in respect of the estate of a deceased property owner, and vesting orders made in saisie proceedings,
- (c) the grant of leases or licences to occupy real property,
- (d) transactions involving rights of way, wayleaves and other such minor rights attaching to land, and
- (e) certain transfers concerning companies where the beneficial ownership is not affected.

3.5 Transfers of shares in listed companies, and transfers by or on behalf of collective investment schemes, are also proposed to be excluded. The imposition of duty on funds investing in Guernsey property, requiring as it would an assessment to duty on each occasion when an investment is made, might make such funds unviable. This would, in the Committee's view, have a disadvantageous effect on the local economy quite disproportionate to the amount of duty which would be collected. Similarly, the imposition of duty on the transfer of shares in listed companies would collect relatively little duty but would have an adverse effect on the local finance industry and, in consequence, the economy. It would also, in practice, be extremely difficult to collect duty on transfers of shares in listed companies, particularly where the listing was on a foreign stock exchange and there was no knowledge on the part of those dealing with the shares that the company (or, more likely, a distant subsidiary of the listed holding company) owned real property in Guernsey as a result of which duty became payable every time any of its shares were transferred.

3.6 Certain other transactions, which would otherwise be treated as relevant transactions, will be exempted from the requirement to pay duty. These include:

- (a) family transactions (see paragraph 3.7),
- (b) transfers in favour of charities or friendly societies, providers of affordable housing and the States,
- (c) transactions occurring when a partnership transfers assets which confer a significant benefit in relation to real property to another partnership (for example, by reason of conversion to a different type of partnership), or to a company, where the partners (or members, where the transfer is to a company), and their respective partnership shares

(or shares of the company assets) are the same before and after the transaction,

- (d) certain transfers of shares in a company where the principal use of the real property in respect of which the significant benefit arises, is for the purposes of a business, trade or undertaking operated by that company or a subsidiary, and
- (e) certain transfers concerning partnerships where the principal use of the real property is for the purposes of a business, as in (d).

In order to achieve a degree of flexibility it is proposed that the States will also have power by Ordinance to amend the classes of exempt transactions.

3.7 "Family transactions" will also be exempt from duty. A transaction will be exempt under this category if both parties to a transaction are related to each other in one of the specified ways, including:

- (a) as spouse or civil partner (or former spouse or civil partner),
- (b) as a cohabitee or former cohabitee,
- (c) as a parent or child or grandparent or grandchild or great-grandparent or great-grandchild, and
- (d) as a sibling, uncle or aunt, nephew or niece.

Power to amend this category by Ordinance is also proposed.

3.8 Where a relevant transaction is not exempt, duty will be payable at a percentage of the market value of the benefit acquired. The percentage will be specified by Ordinance and will correspond to the percentage prescribed for document duty. This means that in a simple case where the significant benefit transferred is the enjoyment of a domestic property (as might occur when a company owning a single property as its principal asset is sold by share transfer) then the duty payable would be comparable to the amount payable if the property had been transferred by conveyance. In such a case the consideration paid for the transaction is likely to reflect the market value. However, in less straightforward cases, the use of the market value as a basis for calculating the duty enables a fairer and more accurate solution to be reached.

3.9 It is proposed that the legislation will impose liability, and a duty of self-assessment, jointly and severally on the transferor and the transferee in order to discourage avoidance, although in practice it is likely that the transferee (as the "purchaser") will pay the duty. Unless the transaction is excluded from being treated as a relevant transaction (see paragraphs 3.4 and 3.5), a self-assessment form will be required to be completed and submitted to HM Greffier within 28 days after the transaction, accompanied by supporting documentation as to the market value, and by payment of the duty payable, if any. If the parties claim that the transaction is an exempt one they should make a declaration accordingly and need not submit a valuation unless subsequently required to do so. H M Greffier may request further information and will keep a register of all such returns. Fees, to be prescribed by regulations, may be charged in respect of HM Greffier's administrative functions, in lieu of the registration fees payable when a document is registered.

- 3.10 HM Greffier may refer any transaction to the Director of Income Tax and is likely to do so when any difficulty or dispute arises. The Director will be responsible for enforcement and will have powers to make a formal assessment, to require further documentation to be produced and to impose penalties in appropriate cases. He will also have powers similar to those under the Income Tax legislation to give directions or make adjustments as to liability where a transaction or series of transactions amounts to avoidance, reduction or deferral of liability.
- 3.11 Provision will be made for appeals to the Royal Court against decisions of the Director of Income Tax and for the creation of offences of fraudulent evasion of duty, failure to comply with the requirements of self-assessment and the making of false or misleading statements. It is proposed that directors and other officers of corporate bodies, limited partnerships and foundations which are convicted of an offence may also be convicted where they are proved to have consented to or connived in the offence or been guilty of neglect.

4 Proposed Document Duty (Guernsey) Law

- 4.1 The Policy and Resources Committee recommends a new simplified approach to the document duty regime. The present legislation, which imposes different rates of duty for different types of registered document, will be repealed (whilst maintaining the approach introduced this year in relation to banding - see paragraph 4.6) and the new legislation will be based on the general principle that any document presented for registration which relates to a transaction –

- (a) transferring an interest in Guernsey real property, or
- (b) creating a charge against real property ("bond") will be chargeable to document duty except in defined circumstances. As at present, the document will not be registered until duty has been paid.

- 4.2 A transaction will be exempt from document duty if it is a family transaction (see paragraph 3.7) or if it is a transfer in favour of, or a charge against the real property of, a charity, friendly society, affordable housing provider or the States (see paragraph 3.6(b)). Other proposed exemptions include documents:
- (a) settling property on trust, making a transfer of property from a trustee to a trust beneficiary, or transferring property from retiring to new trustees,
 - (b) conveying property from a company to its beneficial owner or to another member of the same group of companies,
 - (c) transferring property by will, by partage or by conveyance between co-heirs,
 - (d) creating or affecting servitudes, wayleaves or covenants, and
 - (d) which are Acts of Court evidencing a transfer of property, such as a vesting order, an administration order or an order relating to provision for family and dependants under inheritance legislation, or a vesting order in saisie proceedings.

The legislation will enable further exemptions to be introduced by Ordinance.

- 4.3 It is proposed that where a chargeable transaction is not exempt, duty will be calculated according to whether the transaction is made at arm's length (i.e. on normal commercial terms) or otherwise than at arm's length.
- 4.4 Where the transaction is made at arm's length, the amount of document duty payable shall be a percentage (specified by Ordinance) of the stated consideration, or of the sum secured against the property. In such a case the parties will be required to file a declaration, in practice normally in the document itself, stating that the consideration stated in the document is the total consideration for the transaction.
- 4.5 Where the transaction is made otherwise than at arm's length, the amount of duty payable will be a percentage (specified by Ordinance) of the market value of the property transferred, or of the sum secured.
- 4.6 In each case there will be flexibility to prescribe different rates for different types of transaction, as the States may from time to time see fit. It is proposed that the initial rates for conveyances and bonds will correspond to those set out in the Document Duty Ordinance 2003, which was amended in consequence of the 2017 Budget to provide a graduated system whereby progressively higher rates are applied to conveyances for each band of the transaction value. The rates for the charging of real property will be prescribed separately as at present.

- 4.7 It is proposed that the parties to a chargeable transaction will be under a duty to file a declaration stating the consideration or the market value (according to whether the transaction is at arm's length or otherwise). HM Greffier may, if he is of the opinion that the consideration stated, in respect of a transaction declared to be at arm's length, is inadequate, require the market value of the property to be used as the basis for calculation of the duty payable. HM Greffier will also have powers to require further evidence to be supplied and to assess the amount of document duty which is, in his opinion, properly payable. In practice, it is likely (as at present) that in any case where there is doubt as to the correct treatment of a document for duty purposes, the party wishing to register the document will discuss the matter with HM Greffier in advance of the date of registration.
- 4.8 Provision will be made for appeals to the Royal Court against decisions of HM Greffier. Where an appeal is lodged, registration of the document will still be possible pending the determination of the appeal: the appellant may lodge a sum equal to the amount of document duty which HM Greffier alleges is due, the document will be registered and the money deposited in a bank pending such determination.
- 4.9 The legislation will create offences of making false or misleading statements which may also extend to directors and officers of corporate bodies (see paragraph 3.11). HM Greffier will also have powers to make adjustments of liability, as in the anti-avoidance duty scheme (see paragraph 3.10), where there has been avoidance, reduction or deferral of liability.

5 Financial Implications

- 5.1 In 2015, the General Revenue income from Document Duty on conveyancing totalled approximately £10million. The rates currently are:
- 2% on up to £250,000 of the transaction value;
 - 3.25% on up to the next £150,000 (ie the portion from £250,000 to £400,000);

- 3.5% on up to the next £350,000 (ie the portion from £400,000 to £750,000);
- 3.75% on up to the next £250,000 (ie the portion from £750,000 to £1,000,000);
- 4% on the remaining amount (ie the portion above £1,000,000).

5.2 The following table show the Document Duty payable for a range of conveyances:

Value of Conveyance £	Document Duty Payable £
500,000	13,375
750,000	22,125
1,000,000	31,500
2,000,000	72,500
5,000,000	191,500

- 5.3 It is not possible to estimate the level of additional income that the introduction of anti-avoidance duty could generate as little information is available on the number and value of properties held by legal entities or how often they are transferred.
- 5.4 The introduction of anti-avoidance duty would remove the justification for the existence of companies which own Guernsey real property solely for the purpose of the avoidance of document duty. The transfer of such a property to the beneficial owner of the company would, under the new document duty regime, be exempt from document duty and so it is possible that some such owners would decide to save future company administration costs and hold the property personally. This would mean that any future conveyances of that property would attract document duty. Whilst it is not possible to establish exact numbers of such companies, it is estimated that there could be in the region of 1,400 companies with a potential Guernsey property connection. The new anti-avoidance duty will also discourage the formation of new property-holding companies where the primary purpose is the avoidance of document duty.
- 5.5 Avoidance of document duty is not the only reason for holding property in a company, trust or other entity. Other reasons include property held:

- As part of a pension arrangement (eg a buy to let property held in a Retirement Annuity Trust Scheme);
- As part of an individual's complex inheritance arrangements (eg to hold a property in trust to ensure that it is available for occupation by various family members in a specific way and for a specific period);
- In order to separate the personal property of an individual operating an unincorporated business (eg a sole trader) from the assets of the business;
- In an investment fund or by a multi-member pension fund (where there will be many ultimate owners of the property);
- As part of a larger commercial operation which may have numerous ultimate owners (eg. shareholders of a listed company).

- 5.6 As each company pays an annual validation fee of £250, in the extreme, if all of these 1,400 companies were to dissolve, some £350,000 of annual validation income would be lost. However, the conveyance of a property with a market value of £1million would currently attract document duty of £31,500 which is equivalent to 126 years of annual validation fee.
- 5.7 It is not envisaged that any additional resources will be required in order to administer the anti-avoidance duty although this will be reviewed in light of the number of appeals referred to the Director of Income Tax.
- 5.8 The Committee is keen that any delay in its commencement be minimised in order to avoid further income loss to General Revenue caused by the absence of liability for duty on such transactions. The potential for such loss has increased in 2017 with the introduction of a graduated system of document duty with progressively higher rates of duty applying as the conveyance value increases.
- 5.9 Therefore, the Bailiff has granted permission¹ for the policy letter and draft legislation to be considered by the States at the same meeting.
- 5.10 When the Projets de Loi have received Royal Assent and been registered in the Royal Court it will be necessary to enact a commencement Ordinance and one setting the rates of duty. The Committee has the power, should it deem it necessary or expedient in the public interest to do so, to enact those

¹ in accordance with paragraph 5.2.1 of Directive No 1 of 2016 (entitled The Submission of Propositions to the States) issued by HM Greffier on 20 May 2016

Ordinances under Article 66A of the Reform (Guernsey) Law, 1948. The Committee will consider exercising that power if it deems it appropriate to do so in order to avoid further delay in implementation of the new regime which would be caused by taking the Ordinances through the normal legislative processes. If this procedure is followed, the Ordinances would subsequently be laid before the States.

6 Engagement and Consultation

- 6.1 The development of the anti-avoidance duty proposals has been immensely complicated and it has taken substantially longer than anticipated to develop proposals which are as fair and comprehensive as possible and encompass both domestic and commercial property.
- 6.2 The development of detailed proposals has been undertaken through preparation of draft legislation as this was considered to be the most appropriate and efficient method to identify and address the multitude of transaction types and reach a workable solution.
- 6.3 The former Treasury and Resources Department consulted widely on this issue including a public consultation exercise in 2014 followed by consultation on the revised draft legislation with the Guernsey Bar in 2015 and 2016, including meetings with interested parties. The final drafts of the legislation take into account the representations received and detailed responses have been given to the groups and individuals who submitted their views.

7 Propositions

The States are asked to decide whether they are of the opinion:-

- 1. To approve the proposals to introduce a document duty (anti-avoidance) duty regime in accordance with Section 3 of the Policy Letter;
- 2. To approve the Projet de Loi entitled "The Document Duty (Anti-Avoidance) (Guernsey) Law, 2017", and to authorise the Bailiff to present a most humble petition to Her Majesty praying for Royal Sanction thereto;
- 3. To approve the proposals to repeal the Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 1973 and the Document Duty (Guernsey) Ordinance, 2003 and to substitute a revised document duty regime in accordance with Section 4 of the Policy Letter;

4. To approve the Projet de Loi entitled "The Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 2017", and to authorise the Bailiff to present a most humble petition to Her Majesty praying for Royal Sanction thereto; and
5. To direct the preparation of such other legislation as may be necessary to give effect to the above decisions.

8 Committee Support for Propositions

- 8.1 In accordance with Rule 4(4) of the Rules of Procedure of the States of Deliberation and their Committees, it is confirmed that the propositions above have the unanimous support of the Committee.

Yours faithfully

PROJET DE LOI

ENTITLED

The Document Duty (Anti-Avoidance) (Guernsey) Law, 2017

THE STATES, in pursuance of their Resolutions of the 15th December, 2011^a and 17th May, 2017^b, have approved the following provisions which, subject to the Sanction of Her Most Excellent Majesty in Council, shall have force of law in the Island of Guernsey.

Document duty (anti-avoidance) duty.

1. (1) Duty is payable to the Greffier, for the account of the States, in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this Law, in respect of any relevant transaction unless it is an exempt transaction.

(2) Subject to subsection (4), a transaction is a relevant transaction if -

- (a) in consideration for a payment in money or money's worth to, or for the benefit of, any person ("the transferor"), it confers on any person ("the transferee") a significant benefit arising from, or relating to, any real property ("the property"), and

^a Billet d'État No. XXII of 2011.

^b Article * of Billet d'État No. * of 2017.

- (b) the transaction is not a transaction in respect of which document duty is payable under the Document Duty (Guernsey) Law, 2017.

(3) For the purposes of this section, and subject to subsection (4), a transaction confers a significant benefit if, as a result of the transaction, the transferee acquires, whether directly or indirectly -

- (a) any right or opportunity to occupy, or to control the occupation of, the property,
- (b) any right or opportunity to receive, or to direct the distribution of, any rents or other money or money's worth arising from the property, or
- (c) any right or opportunity to enjoy, or control the enjoyment of, the property in any way whatsoever.

(4) A transaction shall not be treated as conferring a significant benefit for the purposes of this section if the right or opportunity acquired by the transferee, which would but for this subsection fall within one of the categories set out in subsection (3), arises only by virtue of one of the following -

- (a) by succession to an interest in the property of a deceased person (whether under a will or otherwise),
- (b) by an order of court including, without limitation -
 - (i) an order made pursuant to a divorce or judicial separation,

- (ii) an administration order made under Part II of the Law Reform (Inheritance and Miscellaneous Provisions) Law, 2006^c,
 - (iii) an order made under Part II (provision for family and dependants) of the Inheritance (Guernsey) Law, 2011^d,
 - (iv) a vesting order made pursuant to saisie proceedings,
- (c) a lease or a licence to occupy,
- (d) the creation, variation or discharge of a servitude, wayleave or covenant,
- (e) the transfer of shares of a company which is listed on a stock exchange recognised by the Registrar under the Companies (Recognised Stock Exchanges) Regulations, 2009^e,
- (f) the transfer of shares of a company from a person who

^c Order in Council No. IV of 2008.

^d Order in Council No. XIII of 2011; amended by No. V of 2016.

^e GSI No. 25 of 2009; amended by GSI No. 76 of 2014.

holds those shares as nominee for the beneficial owner ("A") of those shares -

- (i) to A, or
 - (ii) to another person who, immediately after such transfer, will hold those shares as nominee for A,
- (g) any purchase or sale by or on behalf of a collective investment scheme within the meaning of the Protection of Investors (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 1987^f or any issue, transfer or redemption of any units in such a collective investment scheme,
- (h) an agreement giving a person an option to purchase any property, whether real or personal, at some time in the future (provided that, for the avoidance of doubt, nothing in this paragraph shall prevent the exercise of such an option being treated as conferring a significant benefit for the purposes of this section),
- (i) a transaction of which the bona fide principal purpose is to secure the repayment of a loan, ^f Ordres en Conseil, Vol. XXX, p. 281; amended by Vol. XXX, p. 243; Vol. XXXVII, p. 24; Order in Council Nos. XV and XXXII of 2003; No. XVIII of 2008; No. XIII of 2010; Recueil d'Ordonnances, Tome XXIV, p. 324. There are other amendments not relevant to this provision.

- (j) a transaction of which the bona fide principal purpose is the management of real property on an arm's length basis, or
- (k) a transaction of a description prescribed for the purposes of this section by Ordinance.

(5) The States may by Ordinance amend subsection (4) so as to remove or amend any of the classes of transaction which are not to be treated as conferring a significant benefit for the purposes of this section.

(6) For the avoidance of doubt, and without prejudice to the generality of subsection (2), a transaction may be a relevant transaction in the following circumstances -

- (a) the property is owned by a company which is limited by shares and the transaction is a transfer of the legal or beneficial ownership of any of the shares of that company,
- (b) the property is owned by a company limited by guarantee and the transaction is a transfer or creation (for the benefit of the transferee) of any right or interest in that company,
- (c) the property is owned by a foundation and the transaction has the effect of conferring a significant benefit on the transferee in respect of that property,

- (d) the property is owned by the trustees of a trust and the transaction is a transfer or creation of any interest in that trust or of any expectation that the trustees of the trust will confer any significant benefit on the transferee in respect of that property,
