It is prohibited to take eels and eel-like fish by diving at any time. This includes using diving nets, rods, and any breathing apparatus to take control of possession of the same fish. Eel-like fish or eels, are found to be on board a boat which has been used as a base for diving within the territorial waters of the island in question. Each person on board the boat is to report that the fish were not taken within the territorial waters.

Fishing by Diving

It is prohibited to take eels and eel-like fish by diving at any time. This includes using diving nets, rods, and any breathing apparatus to take control of possession of the same fish. Eel-like fish or eels, are found to be on board a boat which has been used as a base for diving within the territorial waters of the island in question. Each person on board the boat is to report that the fish were not taken within the territorial waters.

Trot Lines and Set Nets

It is now forbidden to fish with trot lines or set nets within certain areas and bays around Guernsey and Jersey between 1st July and 30th September. These areas are designated "restricted waters" and are shown on the chart.

All set nets and trot lines must be staked - this should either be with a vessel registration number or a gear serial number. This number can be obtained from the Department of Fisheries and will provide a reliable means of identifying the user of any set net or trot lines by authorised officers. Any trot lines and set nets that are deemed to be set in such a way as to cause a hazard to other users, may be removed by officers of the Department of the Police.

Between 1st October and 30th April set nets and trot lines may be used within "restricted waters" provided they are set below the halfway mark of the tide and not exposed to the air for more than one hour per tide. Outside of the area marked the "restricted waters" set nets and trot lines may be used without restriction as control, other than those of marking and safety.